Keri: Writing Numbers, is the sixth book in this delightfully zany seven-part-series known as the Keri Series. Based on seven actual conversations the author had with her daughter when she was four-years-old, The Keri Series humorously addresses the mystery of all mysteries, the mother-daughter relationship. The author's wish is that this enduring series will be enjoyed by mothers and daughters from generation to generation. We invite you to experience the conversation about writing numbers.Pamela M. McGee, a registered nurse, resides in Ellijay, GA. with her husband. It is the author's desire, regardless of the subject matter, to celebrate the extraordinary life in its ordinary form. books include: When You Dare to Love, Pamela Marie McGee: An Ovation, The Boy Who Holds the Key, and the Keri Series, including: Keri: About the Sun, Keri: Dandelions, Keri: the Wedding, Keri: Flies and Keri: Perfume.

About the Author Pamela M. McGee, a registered nurse, resides in Ellijay, GA. with her husband. It is the author's desire, regardless of the subject matter, to celebrate the extraordinary life in its ordinary form. Her previous books include: When You Dare to Love, Pamela Marie McGee: An Ovation, The Boy Who Holds the Key, and the Keri Series, including: Keri: About the Sun, Keri: Dandelions, Keri: the Wedding, Keri: Flies and Keri: Perfume. Dawn Ellen Miller is a gifted illustrator who has collaborated with Ms. McGee on the books, The Boy Who Holds the Key, and the Keri Series. As a long time friend, Dawn brings sensitivity and insight into the illustrations through use of humor, vivid colors and whimsy. Ms. Miller's artwork extends to use of pastels, water color, pen and ink, photography, etc. She teaches art classes and participates in Renaissance Festivals and local stage productions. Ms. Miller resides in Maryland with her husband.
